

MINING EVENTS ARE MOVING RAPIDLY

SHERBET FIZZ AND HOW TO MAKE IT

Ore Discoveries of Almost Daily Occurrence in Many Fields.

True Story of How Popular
Drink Was Invented
by Novice.

Jerome, Ariz., Sept. 5.—Events are moving rapidly in this portion of the Jerome copper belt. The new streaks of pay ore just encountered by the Little Daisy and the United Verde Extension companies have set the whole camp agog and wrought up local operators to the tip of expectancy. The rich strike was made at the 40 foot level, and as the shafts have gone down the character of the ore has proven even better than at first indicated.

An important group of developing companies in the near vicinity of the United Verde is immediately affected by an event of this nature, especially in view of the secrecy which has habitually shrouded the underground operations of the big mine of the Montana senator. At the Verde Grande shaft the whirr of machinery now betokens the steady progress of the sinking work, and all who have viewed the new plant pronounce it the best and most complete even brought into the district, barring, of course, the great United Verde equipment.

At Phoenix.

The stockholders of the Central Mining and Development company, operating the Two Queens group of gold-copper mines in Pinal county, may well take considerable satisfaction from the showing made recently at the stockholders' annual meeting held here. The company is now on a solid financial basis, as indicated by the reports of the treasurer and financial agent. The company has on hand a cash balance of some $25,000, with subscriptions for stock still to be collected amounting to about $80,000. The number of stockholders is 4,921, and there is still a treasury reserve of unsold stock to the number of 1,817,850 shares, constituting an asset of large value to the company. A fine equipment of machinery has recently been installed at the main working shaft on the property, and rapid progress may be looked for in the drivings of the shafts and tunnels.

At Mansfield.

The Mansfield copper mine continues to report good progress, and the aggressive policy of the company is showing most substantial results. Sampling on two lots of ore recently out showed assay values of $112 and $125, respectively. A very large amount of this high-grade shipping ore will be available as soon as the new stopes are opened, while at the same time an immense tonnage of exceptionally rich milling ore will be ready to be blocked out. The procuring of adequate milling facilities is the immediate problem now confronting the Mansfield management. A 200-ton mill is being equipped, but there can be no doubt that its enlargement to a capacity of 1,000 tons daily will be absolutely required as development of the already demonstrated ore bodies proceeds. The Cap shaft is now down 140 feet, and some very high-grade ore is being taken out.

GOVERNOR VISITS TERRITORY'S PRISON

Santa Fe, N. M., Sept. 6.—Governor Curry visited the territorial prison yesterday while the board was in session and together with the members inspected the buildings and grounds. The executive thought a large number of improvements were necessary and that needed repairs to the building and brick kilns should be made immediately. He expressed himself as pleased with the efficient manner in which the institution was being conducted by the new superintendent. He was much interested in the work being done in the brick yard. All improvements he thought should be kept within the appropriation allowed for maintenance of the institution.

A little wanted paves the way,
To wealth and comfort day
by day.
It's sure to pay a dividend,
For the want ad is the poor man's friend.

The drink mixer leaned back against the soda fountain and wiped the perspiration from his face with the sleeve of his white coat.

"Gee, but I'm glad to get this rest," he sighed. "All afternoon I ain't heard anything but chocolate ice cream soda, please, and 'mix me a sherbet fizz.'"

"What? Never heard of a sherbet fizz? Why, it's one of the most popular drinks in the season. And the story of its invention—I suppose you don't know that either?"

"Waits and his tea kettle ain't anything to this inventor. I never heard his last name, but his first was 'Willie.' He invented sherbet fizz by accident, as all great inventors do. Willie had never mixed any drinks before. He came to work on a busy Saturday and they put him serving drinks right at the start. Well, he mixed a couple of ice cream sodas and a lemonade all right, and then in came a man who wanted an egg phosphate.

He Never 'Let On.'

"Willie was up against it then, but he never let on. He just said, 'Yes, sir,' grabbed up a glass and let down some lemon syrup; that didn't look good so he put in some orange. Then he thought that those two would only counteract each other, so he added some pineapple. Somehow or other he felt after that that he wasn't making any progress after all, so he decided on some vanilla. Vanilla is the standard and it's always good."

"I'll chuck him then that it must be about time to put in something from a bottle and he made in two dashes of biters. A bottle of rum attracted them next and he added a dash of that."

"After that he broke an egg into the glass. He'd mighty near reached the end of his row when he thought of the fountain man's advice. He was in doubt all day, but he decided."

"In spite of all the truck that was in already there was still some space left and Willie filled it with cream."

And Then He Shocked It.

"The logical thing to do next was to shake the stuff together, and whatever else Willie was, he was logical. When he poured the mixture out he added a little carbonated water and sprinkled nutmeg on top."

"All this time the customer had been looking on wide-eyed and when Willie shoved out the dope he shook his head and tilted it with cream."

"I ordered an egg phosphate," he remembered.

"Willie was puzzled for a minute, but he never forgot his first name. This is an egg-sherbet fizz," he says, never batting an eye. "Try it. It's great and it won't cost you a cent more than the phosphate."

"And the customer sucked on the straw, tasted, tasted again and said: 'You're all right, young man.'"

"I knew you'd like it," says Willie, calmly. "I invented it myself."

"And then he hurried away to write the recipe down before he forgot it."

Territorial Topics

Geo. C. Spears, and old time resident of Silver City, is dead. He came to the territory from Athens, Ga., in 1866.

After a lingering illness of over a year's duration, Mrs. Nettie Earle died at 10:45 o'clock last night at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. H. Ward, in Las Vegas.

Judge Seaman Field, one of the oldest and best citizens of New Mexico, died at Bering Tuesday. He came to the territory in 1882 and is survived by a widow and five children.

The Advocate, a weekly democratic newspaper published in Artesia, N. M., has been sold to Gayle Talbot, John B. Enfield and others, who will conduct it hereafter as a straight democratic paper. Gayle Talbot was the editor and proprietor of the paper some years ago and sold out on account of ill health. He has again resumed its ownership.

Wm. Reese, of Douglas, while rounding a corner in his auto, saw that a street car was about to strike his machine and he quickly threw around the guide wheel, thus escaping death in the collision but overturning the auto. His collarbone was broken, his wife's right injured and the muscles of both arms of Mrs. Ida Schutz were torn.

Considerable concern is expressed by friends over the whereabouts of J. Henry, recently employed in the office of the county recorder in Coconino, Ariz. He went to Prescott on a business trip and was expected to be gone about two weeks. The last word of him was a letter received by Mrs. Henry, dated August 24 and written in the Burke hotel in Prescott.

Hardwood, one of the pair of fine sorrel driving horses owned by Col. Epes Randolph, was killed by lightning in the thunder storm which passed over Tucson, Ariz., at 11 o'clock this morning. Biddy, a beautiful black saddle mare, owned by Mrs. Randolph was stricken partially blind by the same bolt. An effort is being made to preserve the sight of one of the animal's eyes.

For the month ending last Saturday the old Dominion mine in Arizona will show the greatest monthly production of the copper in its history, the output of the smelter being about 3,000,000 pounds. Although the actual figures are not at hand, the full battery of furnaces has been in operation until several days ago, when a leak caused the temporary closing down of one of them.
